

THE ADDRESS
OF THE
Lords Spiritual and Temporal
TO THE KING & QUEEN.

Die Veneris 18. Novembris 1692.

WE Your Majesties most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, Do Present Your Majesty our most Humble Thanks for the many Gracious Expressions in Your Majesties Speech; And do Heartily Congratulate Your Majesties Preservation and Safe Return. It is also with great Satisfaction that we observe the Remarkable Testimony Your Majesty hath Given of the Courage and Bravery of Your own Subjects: And as they are very Happy, who had the Honour to Act any Thing worthy Your Majesties Approbation, so they and we, must be ever Sensible of this Honourable Mention, that Your Majesty hath made of their Valor, which cannot fail of being always more Animated by Your Own Great Example. And whereas Your Majesty hath been Pleased to Desire our Advice; as we acknowledge it to be our Duty, So we shall ever be Ready Humbly to Offer it, to Your Majesty upon all Important Occasions.

The King Thank'd the House of Lords for the Address, and Declared He would be always Ready to Do what was for the Honour and Safety of the Nation.

WE Your Majesties most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, being full of the True Sense of the Safety and Happiness that the Nation hath Enjoyed in Your Majesties Administration of the Government, during the King's Absence, by which the Danger of an Invasion was Prevented, and a Glorious Victory Obtained at Sea, do hold our selves Obligated to Present our most Humble Acknowledgments to Your Majesty, for Your Prudent Conduct, by which the Honor of the Nation has been so much Raised, and it's Security so well Established.

The Queen Thank'd the House of Lords for their Address.
